

MICHIGAN STATE POLICE
SCHOOL BUS INSPECTION UNIT

2007 ANNUAL TRAINING

Unit members perform an inspection on a special needs school bus as part of their annual proficiency exam.

Michigan State Police Vehicle Safety Inspectors conduct a 198-point inspection on all Michigan school buses annually.

The inspection consists of all interior and exterior components.

Michigan has some of the most stringent inspection criteria in the nation ensuring the safety of Michigan children.

The Michigan State Police inspects approximately 18,000 school buses annually.

In 2007 89% of Michigan's Schools passed this extensive inspection process.

School buses are considered the safest form of transportation to school for children, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Each day, more than 810,000 students ride Michigan school buses.

The Michigan State Police School Bus Inspection Unit ensures that students ride safely.
